FLOOR DEBATE

March 25, 2004 LB 172, 1155

what this kind of philosophy is supposed to be about, and these hypocrites, presided over by a "feloness," says, well, he's not good enough; I told him to do this and he didn't do it and, by God, he's not going to get any support from us because he's not pro-life enough. When has she ever taken in anybody? And even if she had, she is awfully presumptuous and hateful. You know what Ralph Waldo Emerson said, among other things? That when we live a certain way, nature, and I'm paraphrasing, will...is not slow to dress us in the livery of what our conduct is. And he talks about the set to the face, the...

SENATOR JANSSEN PRESIDING

SENATOR JANSSEN: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...perpetual expression that is carried. And you can see hatefulness in the "feloness." Look at the photographs of her, the turned down mouth, the sneaky, shifty eyes, all of the earmarks. And you know why I feel justified in saying this? Because she attacked a man who is better than she will ever be. Why, when she committed a crime, did she not take her medicine? Because she wants a break and wants not to be held responsible for her conduct. But she says if a young girl gets pregnant by her daddy, she should not be able to get an abortion. But here this "criminaless" said, give me a break; I committed a crime, but I don't want to be punished for it. Thank you, Mr. President.

SENATOR JANSSEN: Thank you, Senator Chambers. Senator Foley.

SENATOR FOLEY: Thank you, Mr. President and members. Senator Schimek, I was distracted when you opened your remarks. I think I heard you correctly, but I just want to make sure I did. Did I understand you to say that you were not going to take your amendment to a vote? Thank you. She affirms that she's not going to take this to a vote, and I appreciate that. Senator Schimek and I have an honest disagreement on this question, obviously, but notwithstanding that disagreement, Senator Schimek has been very helpful to me this session on another bill that I was working on. I want to say that publicly that I appreciate her support on another bill, LB 1155, where she
